MEN were sent to their death in badly-made flying machines during the war. But that was war. This is peace, and men are brave enough for that. North Pole trip are valuable. A mere trip of interesting scientific investigation may well be postponed until it can be made safely.

THE "oil operator and club man" was entertaining two ladies of the screen world, and it was getting late. The chauffeur of one lady entered, not so very late, and saved the clubman from a bit of a bottle "for something." The chauffeur added: "Not being very strong, physically, I pulled my gun and let him have it." The oil operator and club man, now in the hospital, may get well. The police say, "Everybody was pretty drunk, and one is a dope thing." "Pulling your gun and letting him have it" with drunkards as the police diagnosis, is becoming quite frequent in our fair prohibition land.

CHICAGO contractors moved a seven-story hotel building, weighing fifteen million pounds. They did it so skillfully that tension remained in the building and went on with their work, undisturbed, while the great load was smoothly moved a distance of 45 feet, in 21 hours. "Marvellous, wonderful achievement," was left exclaim.

THE HEAD CONTRACTOR of the Universe does a moving job even more wonderful. This earth, weighing many billions of tons, moved around the sun at a speed greater than one thousand miles an minute, about 580 million miles a year. All of us go on working, no one is disturbed.

AND WE don't exclaim at it. In fact, we have only recently discovered that the earth moves at all. Not so long ago, the latest religious authorities punished men, with the best of intentions, for asserting that the earth did move.

FOR REAL news of Europe watch the exchange market. Tell what the world thinks of a nation's money, what the world thinks of that nation and its position. Yesterday the franc fell below five cents, the lowest record. The French public debt, in three years, has risen from 200 billion to 400 billion francs. War does not pay, especially if you keep it up, after it ought to be ended.

ONCE MORE, be careful how you invest in bonds of foreign governments. "Bancrofts" will sell them to you, taking their profit. But you will not find many of them in the strong boxes.

FRANCE is agitated by information that Germany has 4,000,000 soldiers ready to go to war, while Prussia and Saxony are great factories for manufacturing weapons. That is not all true, but it will be true in time. A worm will turn, when you step on it. Germany has 65,000,000 people, and they will turn Continued on Page 6, Column 5.

WOMEN IN RACIS TRAFFIC TIED UP

Three Injured Rushed to Hospital After Collision in the Massachusetts Ave. Station

Six women were injured, many passengers became hysterical and part of the subway service was crippled today when a Commonwealth avenue trolley car crashed into a crowded Beacon street car just outside the Copple Square station of the subway.

The injured: Mrs. Esther Carroll, No. 154 Rowan road, Brookline.
Mrs. Minnie McGee, No. 24 Winchester street, Brookline.
Pearl Lefebvre, No. 1238 Commonwealth avenue.
Gertrude E. Elsworth, No. 215 Fuller street, Brookline.

Two other women who left the car at Massachusetts station, and were treated at drug stores for cuts from flying glass.

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL. Mrs. Carroll and Mrs. McGee were taken to the Haymarket Hotel station, where Mrs. Carroll was treated for multiple cuts and bruises and Mrs. McGee for lacerations.

CROWDS HELD UP. Maimed crowd had been gathered at all the stations on the north-bound avenue. Stalled cars extended from the Massachusetts avenue station farther north than Kenmore station and the passengers on these cars were waiting through the subway, adding still more confusion to the tie-up.

MRS. ELEANOR HARLEY AND DINES DIVORCE NOT DUE TO ACTRESSES

New York, Jan. 2.—Neither the name of Mabel Normand nor that of Edna Purviance figured in the domestic litigation that lately divorced young Courtland S. Dines from the pretty dark haired widow who became his second wife, Mrs. Harry B. Harley.

The second Mrs. Dines, who, by order of the Colorado court, is again legally Mrs. Eleanor Harley, was emphatic about this today when the question was put to her in her New York apartment, No. 151 East Eighty-third street, on her arrival here from her mother's home in Fall River, Mass. She had heard of the two moving picture actresses now implicated in shooting of her recent husband "only as one hears of any person in public life or professionally."

Mrs. Harley said she met the wealthy Denver oil man when she was living in Boston and explained: "We were married in Brookline in 1920 and moved to Denver, where we lived in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tracy S. Dines. "My husband's people were abhor-

NERVES GIVE WAY UNDER STRAIN

Rushed to the Hospital Where Dines, Chauffeur's Victim, Lies Wounded

Los Angeles, Jan. 3.—Mabel Normand, whose chauffeur shot and seriously wounded Courtland S. Dines, Denver oil operator and clubman, is at the Good Samaritan Hospital suffering from what her physicians say is a nervous breakdown. Strain, excitement and worry growing out of the shooting caused her to break down, it was announced.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—Mabel Normand's impassioned declaration that there isn't a grain of truth in the story that Horace A. Greer is madly in love with her, and shot Courtland Dines out of frenzied jealousy, began to look more than reasonable to the police today when it was discovered that Greer is an escaped convict.

New York, Jan. 3. (C.N.B.)—Louis F. Pike of Boston, chairman of the Permanent Joint Committee on Trade Relations, is to preside at the organization meeting next Thursday. The purpose of the joint committee is to establish better relations between buyer and seller and to provide for arbitrating trade disputes.

STRANGE FATE LINKS 2 FILM STARS IN SIMILAR TRAGEDIES

Mabel Normand contradicts her chauffeur's story of his shooting of Corliss R. Dines, millionaire oil man, in her presence New Year's night.

"I don't know why he tells you these things," says the woman whose letters to the dead William Desmond Taylor were never made public.

"I was in another room when the shooting occurred. I knew nothing about any quarrel until the shots rang out," she almost wept.

"No, I cannot understand who that man brought a gun to Mr. Dines' home," the gun belonged to Miss Normand, Kelley, or Greer, the shooter, claims.

Before she was questioned, her portrait says Miss Normand shook her finger at Dines in the hospital, saying, "You are naughty to get me in this predicament. I won't play with you any more."

"When he came in he walked towards the room where Miss Purviance was. Edna had on her evening gown, but it wasn't hooded up. I didn't want the chauffeur to see her with her dress unhooded, so I went in and said to Edna, 'Say, where's your powder puff?'"

"Dines said something about 'Why should a chauffeur tell me when to leave?' and that's when the shooting started. It sounded like three or four pistol shots. I ran back into the room and found Mr. Dines lying on the floor, motionless."

"I believe the man Kelley is in some. He was only a servant in my eyes, and he was treated like one. I didn't even call him as I have to others in my service. I didn't even like him. He was so good by my service."

MABEL NORMAND AND EDNA PURVIANCE IN BOTH CASES

The Queen of Sheba was a piker after all. Men died for her. They shoot for Mabel Normand.

"Keystone Mabel" imp of the first flickering comets of the motion pictures, Charlie Chaplin's leading and laughing lady, giggling girl of the bath, beauty days, later weighted with the life of "star"—but always, even now, merry Mabel of the perpetual grin—she's the kind that gets them to the twentieth century.

Of course, one must take with a grain of salt the tale that Mabel of the world-famous smile has always been kind hearted and broken love. The story of the heart-breaking star in a formula applied impartially to all women who reach the top of filmdom.

But no pinch of salt goes with the official police record which tells that Mabel Normand and tragedy were not twice—once on February 1, 1922, when William Desmond Taylor was shot at his desk in Los Angeles, once again Tuesday night when Chauffeur Greer shot over Mabel's shoulder into the body of Corliss Dines.

TRAGEDIES SIMILAR

The two tragedies are so similar that we look started at the first newspaper page to see if it was carrying the date of an issue two or so old. History and Mabel are very different. Mabel Normand was with William Taylor in his study in the movie home at least until within an hour of his murder.

Taylor Normand was with Corliss Dines when he was shot. Taylor's chauffeur was suspected of earlier murder.

Another chauffeur—this time Mabel's own maid—was killed. Abnormal stimulus—either alcohol or women—were proved to have played their part in the Taylor death. A New Year's drinking party was stage of Dines' end.

And, most bewildering—Edna Purviance, another laughing leading lady, plays an identical moral role in both events.

PHONES MABEL

Edna, on the morning of February 2, 1922, is the first person who first gives Mabel news of Taylor's death. She gives it over the telephone from her hotel adjoining the Taylor home. She hears through an open window, "Hello," she says, "yelled by Taylor's servant. The servant runs into the room, the dividing lawn, bawling out the story of how he has found Taylor dead across a lit red chair."

Edna gives Mabel a bulletin account as the events occur, never leaving the telephone until she hears, jesses the wires, the shriek of comprehension and the third when Mabel faints.

Edna is Mabel's companion in the Dines apartment. They are in at the shooting.

As one considers these complete facts, one is forced to conclude that it is somewhere among them that the one fact which explains two shootings is to be found. It is an elusive fact, for the police of the whole country have not put their fingers on it in two years of constant investigation. But it must be there.

THE FACT

Perhaps somewhere in the past—in the past?

And that building, suggestive still of the old and haunting of the past. Both women were at one time in their similar career leading women for Charlie Chaplin. Both had the experience of being so intimately acquainted with the man who played the personality of the stranger tragedian of filmdom that both struggled under when the moment came to leave his guidance for artistic adventure on their own.

Mabel came first.

It is not quite fair to make of her a footnote to Chaplinism. She was a "Keystone Mabel" before Chaplin was anything more than a roving vaudeville man in the English halls, trying for a laugh before three audience a day and in person.

The Boston girl who drifted into the Port Lee studio then spent early days of blarney had been self-sufficient for many years. Even so, she was model for James Montgomerie Fraser, Channing, and the Layden and Henry Stuart.

Another model look has over the

WILLIAM D. TAYLOR

Tuesday night, she skirted death during her first romance after the Taylor murder and the trial of scandalous publicity which was her share in that event.

She recovered, then broke her collar bone in a fall from a horse on Colorado Beach last August. Then she dedicated a story when she fell from a ladder on a movie location.

When she left Chaplin, she handed him over a newborn, Edna Purviance to name. Edna was a young underdog, taken from a class play to be thrust into the limelight of appearance on the same screen with Chaplin.

SUCCEEDS MABEL

The Chaplin-Purviance valentine need not be enumerated. They are still remembered, and periodically revived. Midway through the association of the two, the runner gained currency that they were engaged to be married. The rumor died of constant repetition. Edna left Chaplin. She seemed to have left a bit of a snub behind.

EDNA PURVIANCE

"Hell Murder" Edna Purviance heard on the morning of Feb. 2, 1922, yelled by the agent of William Desmond Taylor, slain in his home. Edna was the first to tell Mabel the news.

Told Friends in Denver of "Sweet Times" He Had With Edna and Mabel

By LEO ALAMOR, Universal Staff Correspondent.

Denver, Jan. 3.—Henry Van Dyke, Dines was in Denver two weeks ago, visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dines, and telling his male friends in Denver society what a "sweet time" he was having in Los Angeles with Edna and Mabel.

"They certainly were 'nice girls,'" he said. "It was fun every minute of the day. Nobody worked hard or worked long. Edna had just shown him a check for $10,000 a few days ago received as royalty on one picture. Another time, she said she had a check for $10,000. Money was the last of their troubles in that crowd."

"I was eleven months of perfect bliss," he said. "I've got to have about one month a year for play. The last two wives both beautiful girls, both wealthy and from excellent families, say that it developed as he ever was. It is his personality. The most delightful fellow you ever met. He told me once he knew he never should have married anybody and he never would have married again. He was wholly unfit for the life."

He would she was prettier and more beautiful than in the middle of the street. It was with something like this that the former wife saw the "hush" and "start" and took up and started for the coast.

WILLETT JURY THANKS JUDGE FOR PAY MOVE

Plaintiff Tells of Purchase of the Roxbury Carpet Co. for $1,600,000

The $1,600,000 suit of George F. Willett against Robert F. Herrick and a group of Boston bankers, on trial for the past eight weeks in the Federal court, was interrupted today by a somewhat unusual proceeding when Judge Christopher Callahan from the bench read a communication from the jury.

The letter thanked Judge Callahan for the indulgent courtesy he has extended the jury and voted approval of the action of the court of both sides in rendering a movement to have the legislature pass a law providing for the trial of juries in cases where litigation is drawn out longer than two months, to limit now fixed by law.

The trial will probably run eight weeks more. Unless the legislature omits the relief measure the jury will receive no compensation except for the first two months of the trial.

Mr. Willett was seated on the stand today, undergoing cross-examination at the hands of Hark D. McClellan, chief counsel for Mr. Herrick.

In reply to a question relating to the use of the stock of the Daniel F. Brown Pot Company as security, Mr. Willett stated that he turned certain of this stock over to the New York Trust Company to give double security on loans which the trust company had made to concern in which he had personal participation.

Mr. Willett denied that in the campaign of 1916, of the Green Company in 1917 was included a special dividend or refund of merchandise due to the value of $156,847.

The witness testified that Willett, Sears & Co. purchased the Roxbury Carpet Company for the American Pot Company in 1917 for $1,600,000 and that one-half this amount was paid at once, the balance, with unpaid, being covered by notes of Willett, Sears & Co.

Coolidge Administration Considers New Plan Under 12-Mile Limit Pact

Washington, Jan. 3.—Administration officials are considering adoption of the proposal to expend more than $100,000 in building up five coast guard to combat rumrunners and smuggling use of naval gunboats supplemented by the admiral's private gunboats under the proposed 12-mile limit pact with Great Britain and other nations.

While no decision has been reached, President Coolidge has been urged by some of his advisers to use naval gunboats. New legislation might be necessary.

The discussion so far has concentrated on the effectiveness of the liquor treaties were being acted on and until the coast guard could be estimated, if necessary, to reach moderate appropriations.

While the statutory residence requirement for obtaining a divorce is to remain continuous residence in the State, Elmer A. Inman, at whose home it was claimed she lived, declared Mrs. Anderson had "lived" at his home, No. 27 McKinley street, this city, for a year or a year and a half, that she had actually lived there but a comparatively small part of the time, and that, "I suppose she did it just in order to get a divorce." As far as he knew she had lived at no other place in the city.

When asked if she had ever done any writing at his home, he said:

"She was never there long enough for that." He insisted that the Andersons was not a friend of his family or any relative, but that they had just taken her in as a boarder.

DRY AGENTS TOO ZEALOUS, SAYS COURT

Advices Men Held as Moon-shiner to Sue Them for Damaging His Barn

Judge James M. Moran, Jr., today rendered a judgment in the case of the Central avenue prohibition agents for overhauling in the performance of their duty. Agents Kinsey, Sullivan and Clarke received the call. They had charged Patrick McKeegan of Central avenue, Chelsea, with having a still and other articles used in making moonshine. In a barn on the Central avenue premises, Attorney Arthur Harrington, for McKeegan, stated that the indictment be quashed, charging the agents with the evidence being obtained by pointed out that the agents broke windows in the barn and broke things up generally, while serving their warrant.

While he refused to quash the indictment, Judge Moran said: "If the prohibition agents went in to serve a warrant they had no right to serve it except in the proper legal way. They had no right to smash or deface property, nor had they any business to throw furniture out the window. If they must take the windows off or smash them they should have put them back."

"They should have only exercised force so far as it was reasonably necessary to serve their warrant and conduct their search. On the facts of this case it seems to me that the officers are liable for all the damage they did, and McKeegan has the right to put the building back in the same condition as when the prohibition agents came in, to clean up the premises and then sue the officers and get back all it cost him, and I judge he does it."

Five-Million Candle Power Beacon Aid to Night Flyers

Minneapolis, N. Y., Jan. 2. (L.N.S.)—Aviation circles are buzzing today over the successful test of a beacon light of 5,000,000 candle power beams for planes flying at night.

Diffusing its rays over an arc of 180 degrees, the brilliant searchlight illuminated objects more than a mile away on its first trial.

"The beacon is the biggest help for night fliers we have yet had," said Major Henshaw, the commandant.

Bridegroom Tardy So Girl Weds "Other Man"

Mount Morris, N. J., Jan. 2. (L.N.S.)—A few minutes delay gave "The Other Man" his opportunity here and instead of being the bridegroom of George Meyer, Miss Meyer today is Mrs. of Louis

"Miss Meyer and Meyer had made all arrangements for their wedding and the bride was waiting for the prospective groom. He would be detained for a few minutes. Meyer was an old bachelor of the bride but a quarrel had separated them. Meyer had suggested a suggestion to the bride that they forget their old quarrel and be married. He refused."

Relieves Rheumatism

Medicine lowers up your joints and drives out pain. A clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard, it usually brings relief as soon as you start to rub it on.

It does all the good work of the old-fashioned mustard plaster, without the blister. Doctors also praise it for its safety. It is safe for babies and small children.

To Mothers: Mustard is also made in milder form for babies and small children.

TOWNLEY, CHIEF NON-PARTISAN, ACCUSED

Warrant Out for North Dakota
Man, Charging Him With Embezzlement

Paris, N. D., Jan. 2.—A warrant for the arrest of Arthur C. Townley, banker and former president of the National Non-Partisan League, and J. J. Hastings, former president of the Consumers' United States Company, jointly charged with the embezzlement of $72,000.23 of the funds of the United States Company, was issued here on order of State Attorney H. F. Horner.

The complaint, signed by J. B. Hinton, former private secretary to Townley, charges that Hastings deposited the amount alleged to have been embezzled from the bank and

Suspected as Runner

London, Jan. 3 (I.N.S.).—The British Foreign office, having definitely established the Canadian registry of the ship Tanaka, which was recently seized by the American authorities on suspicion she was a whiskey smuggler, has addressed an inquiry to Washington requesting an explanation why the seizure was made outside of the three mile limit, it was learned today.

Then drew it out from his own and Townley's personal use. The complaint, either alleges that Townley participated in the embezzlement.

HOW DARING ROBBER HELD UP CAFE MAN

Armed bandit
Robbed Cafe in Cambridge

Robber Scatters the Shopmen
With Two Pistol Shots and
Then Escapes With $16

A lone bandit staged a daring holdup at Watson's Lunch, No. 7 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, early today.

Hollis Goodwin, cashier of the lunch room, was waiting the arrival of the day force when the bandit entered and stuck a gun in front of the cashier's face.

"Give me that money," he said. "I will not," replied Goodwin.

"Bang," went the gun and the glass in front of Goodwin was shattered. Goodwin dived beneath the cashier's counter and waited.

James Grogan, counter man, rushed from the back of the room to aid Goodwin. As he neared the bandit the gun cracked again, but it was aimed at the ceiling. James sneaked into a big pan of doughnuts under the lunch counter.

The bandit then helped himself to $16 and departed.

Photo diagram shows how lone bandit robbed H. C. Goodwin, night cashier of a Cambridge lunchroom at the point of a leveled gun. Inset at left, Marie Miller, day cashier, who had just arrived as the robbery was being staged. Inset at lower right, Mr. Goodwin, the robbed cashier and Patrolman Joseph O'Connor, who chased the bandit, who after firing a few farewell shots, fled with $16 in cash.

They are T. H. Hondo, of Wollaston, and Walter H. Grey, of Hyde Park. They are mail clerks.

The train, composed of four mail cars, carried about 25 clerks. The brakes beam on one of the cars, dropped, causing the track to leave the rails, which also caused the next car to leave the rails.

Some of the track was torn up before the train was stopped and the rest of a guard rail went through the floor of a mail car, slightly injuring ten clerks.

Hondo's clerks were torn off the rail, but he escaped with a few scratches.

A single teaspoonful of
DR. CALDWELL'S
SYRUP PEPsin
Will restore good humor

Mothers!! Apply Common Sense

This is the era of the prevention of disease and sensible people do not wait until sickness has actually come before remedying the trouble. The crowded hospitals everywhere are sad examples of the results of neglect. Be especially watchful of children. Indigestion, loss of normal appetite and feverishness usually indicate constipation. Stop it that instant with a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and you will have prevented real sickness. Mrs. Ida Williamson of 1617 Pine St., Long Beach, Cal., and Mrs. Lou Bradley of 501 Ark., never have illness in the family because of their prompt use of Syrup Pepsin.

A Great Family Laxative

It may be difficult to decide just what medicine to use out of the many that are offered, but it would not be if you knew the facts. There are laxatives, cathartics, purgatives and physics, and they vary in their reaction on the system. Naturally, the stronger the medicine the more it shocks the system, so wise parents never give anything but a laxative to children. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a mild laxative, a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and desirable aromatics, and so appreciated that it is now the largest selling preparation of its kind in the world. Over 100 million bottles being used annually. The formula is on every package.

Three Rules of Health

Purchase a bottle of Syrup Pepsin at a drug store and always keep one in the family medicine chest. Give it to anyone from infant to grandparent, for it is safe, and the cost is less than a cent a dose. You can keep a family healthy with just this simple medicine. Give it for constipation, torpid liver, indigestion, biliousness, headache, cold and other evidence of bowel obstruction.

Dr. Caldwell, who was a practicing physician for 42 years and who originated this formula, has three rules of health that he found very effective among his patients and which you can follow with great benefit: Keep the bowels clear, the feet warm, and the endogenous system.

Remember You Want to Try It First Before Beginning: "Syrup Pepsin," 517 Washington St., Boston, Illinois.

I used a good laxative and would like to give you the name of it. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is just what I need on a free trial bottle. Address to: _____

ARMED BANDIT ROBS CAFE IN CAMBRIDGE

Robber Scatters the Shopmen
With Two Pistol Shots and
Then Escapes With $16

A lone bandit staged a daring holdup at Watson's Lunch, No. 7 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, early today.

Hollis Goodwin, cashier of the lunch room, was waiting the arrival of the day force when the bandit entered and stuck a gun in front of the cashier's face.

"Give me that money," he said. "I will not," replied Goodwin.

"Bang," went the gun and the glass in front of Goodwin was shattered. Goodwin dived beneath the cashier's counter and waited.

James Grogan, counter man, rushed from the back of the room to aid Goodwin. As he neared the bandit the gun cracked again, but it was aimed at the ceiling. James sneaked into a big pan of doughnuts under the lunch counter.

The bandit then helped himself to $16 and departed.

Photo diagram shows how lone bandit robbed H. C. Goodwin, night cashier of a Cambridge lunchroom at the point of a leveled gun. Inset at left, Marie Miller, day cashier, who had just arrived as the robbery was being staged. Inset at lower right, Mr. Goodwin, the robbed cashier and Patrolman Joseph O'Connor, who chased the bandit, who after firing a few farewell shots, fled with $16 in cash.

They are T. H. Hondo, of Wollaston, and Walter H. Grey, of Hyde Park. They are mail clerks.

The train, composed of four mail cars, carried about 25 clerks. The brakes beam on one of the cars, dropped, causing the track to leave the rails, which also caused the next car to leave the rails.

Some of the track was torn up before the train was stopped and the rest of a guard rail went through the floor of a mail car, slightly injuring ten clerks.

Hondo's clerks were torn off the rail, but he escaped with a few scratches.

THE MOST important discussion at that scientists' convention, just ended, dealt with the effect of glands, administered to backward or defective human beings, especially children. Within a few generations, the human being will live, on the average, twice as long and be twice as efficient as at present.

CLEMENCEAU says the world has grown stupider. He is tired of it, and will go to Japan to find a change. There he will find a nation that still has before it the troubles of the Western world, as a young child faces bumps and bruises. Clemenceau also says: "The best way to win a war is to lose it." There speaks his wisdom. He will be interesting, if he cared to say just what he thinks of modern French policy. But that would not be patriotic.

CONGRESS will learn, by investigating, just how General Wood's young son was able to make a million or so in Wall Street, speculating by wire across the Pacific. The information will interest shareholders gentlemen that arise, in brokers' offices, on money they once had before they decided to become rich suddenly.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

There is a very real possibility that the large increase in the price of oil and specialties will be a permanent one. It is not a question of whether or not the price will go up or down, but of whether or not it will stay up. The fact is that the price of oil and specialties has gone up, and it is likely to stay up. This is because the demand for oil and specialties is increasing, and the supply is not keeping pace with the demand. This is a situation that is likely to persist for some time to come.

DAVISON DROPS MORE THAN 4 POINTS

The price of Davison stock has dropped more than 4 points in the last few days. This is due to a number of factors, including a general decline in the price of oil and specialties, and a specific decline in the price of Davison stock. The price of Davison stock has been dropping steadily since the beginning of the year, and it is likely to continue to drop for some time to come.

Re-Investment Demand Seen in Bond Market

The bond market is showing signs of a re-investment demand. This is due to a number of factors, including a general decline in the price of bonds, and a specific decline in the price of bonds that are being sold. The price of bonds has been dropping steadily since the beginning of the year, and it is likely to continue to drop for some time to come.

Changes in Boston Are Mostly Only Fractions

The changes in the price of Boston stocks are mostly only fractions. This is due to a number of factors, including a general decline in the price of stocks, and a specific decline in the price of Boston stocks. The price of Boston stocks has been dropping steadily since the beginning of the year, and it is likely to continue to drop for some time to come.

New York Curb

The New York Curb market is showing signs of a re-investment demand. This is due to a number of factors, including a general decline in the price of stocks, and a specific decline in the price of New York Curb stocks. The price of New York Curb stocks has been dropping steadily since the beginning of the year, and it is likely to continue to drop for some time to come.

Wall St. Gossip

The Wall Street market is showing signs of a re-investment demand. This is due to a number of factors, including a general decline in the price of stocks, and a specific decline in the price of Wall Street stocks. The price of Wall Street stocks has been dropping steadily since the beginning of the year, and it is likely to continue to drop for some time to come.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beckman

DEAR MRS. BECKMAN: It is proper in sending your invitations to a family of four to say "Mr. and Mrs. Brown and family" or "Mr. and Mrs. Brown" and each of the family a separate invitation.

AN envelope addressed "Mr. and Mrs. Brown and family" is not good form. The best form is to address the outside envelope to "Mr. Brown" and address one of the enclosed envelopes to "Mr. Brown" and one to "Mrs. Brown" for the women and one to "The Brown Boys" for the unmarried children.

DEAR MRS. BECKMAN: Will you please tell me how to introduce a gentleman to a group of ladies or four young ladies?

SAY: "Miss Madison, Mr. Eastington." Then looking at each young lady in turn, mention her name and do not repeat him. "Miss Eastington, Mr. Eastington." "Miss Eastington, Mr. Eastington." "Miss Eastington, Mr. Eastington."

DEAR MRS. BECKMAN: I am curious for a young widow to use "Mrs." before her husband's name. She may one day marry her late husband's initials, she being very desirous of doing so. I, V. P. 2.

IT is not only permissible but it is the best possible form for a widow to use her husband's name with "Mrs." before it, whether for business or social cards. And I am glad that you want to do it. Your card should read:

Mrs. Louis Vail Patterson.

DEAR MRS. BECKMAN: Does the lady or the gentleman attend wedding first? I am meeting.

THE first born first or speaks first, thereby acknowledging an acquaintance or friendship. It is quite natural that the lady should be given this honor—don't you think so?

DEAR MRS. BECKMAN: In introducing a troupe, should the bride-to-be use her own or her father's initials? If her own, should she use her first or her last initial?

SHE should use her own. The bride-to-be should use her own or her father's initials. If she has a monogram made of her initials, it should be the initial of her last name.

PEOPLE WHO MAKE CARELESS STATEMENTS IN LEFT-THINKING TO REBELS.

"Do not do a better anything which anyone would like to see and publish."

And it is mighty good advice.

It might be added, "Do not put anything on paper you would be unwilling for the world to know."

Are you one of the careless, thoughtless persons who write and write, and consider what you have said in writing afterwards?

Suppose your letters should be lost and should be found by a person who would make their contents known, what effect would this have on your peace of mind, perhaps on your standing in society?

The confidential statements you make to a friend, on paper, may be shown in a few years in the most damaging way for you.

You cannot be too careful what you say in any letter.

It is far better for you if your letters are few and far between. You are not guarded about what you put down with your pen.

Words can be forgotten but a written statement borne down into the memory of the one who reads, particularly if it is a damaging statement.

Saving Money for the People

Mayor Curley Shows Right Kind of Leadership in Gas and Electric Light Fights

The other day Mayor Curley made a public demand upon the local gas company to reduce their charges for gas. A few days later the gas company announced a reduction which is reported to total about $400,000 a year.

Whether this is enough, we do not know; but it is at least a step in the right direction. If you add that sum to the two million dollars which consumers of electricity are already saving as a result of the UNFINISHED contest which the Boston American and the city of Boston are waging against the electric light company, you can see a great saving to the pocketbooks of the city in the charges of these two great quasi-public corporations.

In both of these savings Mayor Curley has participated on the public side. This is the kind of leadership that we mean to see in City Hall. Attending banquets, uttering euphonious and euphemistic things on ceremonial occasions, cheese-paring here and there, dealing patiently and adroitly with all the demands which constitute irrefragable and vainly make upon public men, are all important parts of the functioning of an important American public official. These things keep the machinery greased, but they do not make for progress.

Real saving, real progress is made along the lines in which Mayor Curley is giving a good example in his present attitude toward the gas and electric light companies.

French Troubles

Worried Poland

Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

Worried by the low price of the franc, dropping to "a new low," the French are adjusting their finances, and it is said that, for the first time recently, the budget will balance.

The French are marvelously able, very rich nationally and individually. They will come out of their troubles, but they will first realize that they must find their salvation in France, taking anything they may get from Germany as an EXTRA.

One thing the French ought to arrange if they can, and that is less military spending by other nations in addition to all that France is spending.

An able Polish journalist, sent to this writer by Mr. Cahan of the New York Forward, said yesterday: "We feel that France made us a nation again and we do what France tells us. We are obliged to maintain an army of 600,000 men, as France needs strong allies. How can we recover from the war with that load on our back?"

"A little while ago I was in the Russian army fighting with the allies against Germany. More recently I was in the Polish army fighting against Russia. It is all very complicated."

It is indeed, and it will STAY complicated while France maintains an army of 700,000 and lends Poland money to maintain another army of the same size.

Ask Your Children Whether the Air Is Good in Their Public School Room

Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

A famous German writer said that God might forgive so-called civilized beings for not supplying the poor with bread, which costs money. But He would NOT forgive them for refusing them fresh air and sunlight, which costs nothing.

We advise the PUBLIC SCHOOLS of the various big cities to hear that in mind.

They can be forgiven, perhaps, for allowing tens of thousands of children to begin their work in the morning hungry. It is probably too much to ask of this country that it feed its stomachs as well as the minds of the poorer children.

But although the schools may be forgiven for refusing bread or soup, they cannot be forgiven for refusing fresh air. They are supplied to school children in some of the least wealthy European countries—our school children will certainly not be excused for failing to supply FRESH AIR, which is free, and costs only common sense.

In more than one-half of the school rooms the air is vile, injuring the health of children, deadening the brain, making study difficult for the strong and impossible for the weak.

There are many thousands of children in the United States who find their appetite reduced to less than that of "a chicken," thanks to the lack of intelligence in the construction and management of public schools.

Usually the ventilating systems are imperfect. A majority of them seem based upon stupid ignorance of the fact that cold air falls down the same as cold water, and that if you want fresh air in a room you must either let it "fall in" through the top of the room or FORCE it in with power from the bottom, and at the same time force out the bad air from the top.

School rooms are badly ventilated sometimes because a teacher who happens to be lacking in rugged health or who chooses to wear very thin and pretty clothing does not want fresh air in the room.

It is the duty of superintendents to watch for such teachers and such school rooms.

The main duty is with the parents.

Find out how your children feel when they go to school, and how they feel when they come away.

If they are worn out, pale, showing lassitude and lack of vitality, investigate the ventilating conditions of the school rooms, question the children, or go to the school yourself in the middle of the session, breathe a little of the air, then write to the health department, the head of the school system, and to the mayor, if necessary.

It is foolish to waste half of a life trying to raise a child, and then let the public school poison the child's lungs through carelessness.

P. S.—Of course, the public school authorities will say, just as the judges, the lawyers, the doctors and the public officials say, that everything is being done admirably.

But the fact is that nothing is done well, except THROUGH WATHPFULNESS AND INSISTENCE BY THE PUBLIC.

What the public lets slide others let slide.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

MR. HERBERT HODGES, aged fifty-three, has been giving me his opinion on the Modern Girl. It's some opinion. When Mr. Hodges lets oratory loose on the Modern Girl he makes the most peevish plaints of old-time reformers sound like Christmas Carols. According to Herbert, the Modern Girl is history's blackest blot on civilization.

"Not an ounce of decency!" morns the outraged gentleman. "All she thinks of is attracting men. Politely shameless in the way she flaunts herself! Show me one girl, just one girl, who has the modesty of our mothers and grandmothers. They didn't run around looking for a husband. They staved happily with their parents until their lovers came courting, and even then they dreaded to leave the shelter of the home."

Oh, did they! Well, you may be fifty-three years old in body, Herbert, but you're a babbling babe when it comes to a knowledge of the history of the lady sex. "They didn't run around looking for husbands—" Man, there never was a period when the girls didn't run around looking for husbands. Off their "running" was restricted by custom or circumstance, but their intentions weren't. They did their damndest, son, according to their ability. The female of the species has always scouted for the male—also, she always got what she went after. Why not? You don't blame a boy for looking around for a job at the corner grocery or down at the bank or along the wharf, do you? In fact, you'd think little of him if he didn't hustle for a job when he came of age. Then why shouldn't the girl keep a lively eye out for HER JOB?

Marriage is a very beautiful and romantic partnership. But it is also a very necessary and practical profession.

nine-tenths of the women. And it was even more necessary in the days of Mother and Grandmother than it is now. Carlisle can take a business course and land a position as a stenographer in six months now. But the ladies who preceded her in human history had to marry or linger on as poor relations, under the unhappy brand of "old maids."

If Grandmother HADN'T looked around for a husband under those conditions, Grandmother would have been nothing short of a dumb-bell. But she wasn't. Far from it. Grandmother put a little patch under her eye, pinched her waist into a No. 18 corset, cramped her toes into a No. 1 shoe, tied an alluring pantalette ruffle around her ankle, and proceeded to throw a faint on "the most eligible young man's" shoulder. Whereupon dear, demure, unsuspecting little Grandmother was "born from the family shelter" and married, "most reluctantly," to Grandpa.

But nowadays Granddaughter, having a job to fall back on, grins at this pretense of coyness. She is no longer at man's mercy, she can pick and choose. So she displays her motives openly and discusses the deal with utmost frankness. She makes her own terms and the man can take or leave them as he chooses. Wouldn't Grandmother have made her own terms, too, if there had been any alternative to a domestic career in her life? She certainly would. The new method may seem more crude, but it is indicative of a healthier social condition. It is as much better for the children who are to come as the uncorseted body of her Grandmother. As the bodies have been freed from unwholesome restriction, so have the minds. And humanity will profit by the change.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON WHY THERE ARE NO PROBLEMS

By Dr. Frank Crane

THERE is no labor problem, no social problem, no moral problem, no governmental problem. These are not things that can be worked out with state and pencil. They are conditions out of which we can only grow. The only way to accomplish anything well is to grow it. We talk as if somehow man were outside of and superior to his destiny, and so we mould it. But man is inside of all his problems. He is a figure, and figures cannot add themselves. Now, all this does not end in laissez-faire. It does not mean eat, drink and be merry and let the world take care of itself. That conclusion we only come to by a sort of shift and devil-dodge, prompted by the perverseness of a logic that is merely the intellectual fumes of business.

Sweeping, Unknown Currents

To those who say, "A great Power, not of ourselves, is moving in the sum of things, hence to our huts," we may answer, as Mordred to Lather, "If thou alterest holdest thy peace, doubtless deliverance shall arise to the Jews from another place, but thou and thy father's house shall be destroyed."

There is the point. Vast, superhuman, unutterable, unknown currents are sweeping humanity onward, solving all problems; but these currents are also in us; and if we are used by them and co-operate, we are enlarged, and if we fail or resist we are ground to pieces.

It is constantly borne in upon one who follows the utterances of business prophets that something or other beneath and beyond all human intelligence makes now for prosperity and again for hard times.

A recent writer on commercial topics complains that one who reads the reports in the commission houses must needs that almost every business prediction contradicts the one that precedes or the one that follows.

Confusion Among Experts

We are unable to tell whether good business will continue for two months or six years. Whether hard times will cease next Summer or next Fall or never. Some say that our country is sufficient unto itself, and others that we cannot prosper unless foreign nations also prosper. One prophet declares that the foundations of business are insecure, and another that they are the best they have ever been.

This is confusion of opinion, and confusion among experts and these who ought to know what they are talking about.

The fact is that the great currents underlying business and politics and religion, and every other field of human activity, are subterranean, and that this world moves forward or slides back, not according to our wish and will, but according to the operation of great forces that we can never fully grasp, or perhaps the purpose of a great Mind whose "thoughts are not our thoughts."

SLEEP IN AIRY ROOMS AVOID SNUFFLES

By Herbert Kaufman

BETWEEN Tuesday and Wednesday, Montana thermometer dropped 75 degrees. Pneumonia loves sudden changes like that.

Keep the furnace going, your feet warm and the aspirin bottle handy!

Avoid drafts, spend as little time as possible in crowds, let plenty of fresh air into your sleeping rooms, and beware of snuffles.

Croup and pneumonia will steadily intensify from now until March. The next three months are death's favorite hunting grounds.

Science is almost as resourceless against pulmonary infections as when medical physicians sought to correct the "sneezing sickness" with leech and lancet.

Where's Dr. Flexner's Flu Serum?

We're not even sure that Dr. Flexner has isolated the flu germ; at least, no serum is forthcoming from the Rockefeller Research Laboratories. When pathology does provide such an anti-toxin, life insurance companies will promptly revise their expectation tables.

The best New Year wish in which you can indulge is that practice verify the fact that no epidemic has been made for the mercury, reared to double the number of white corpuscles.

These are the defensive armies of the blood stream and especially hostile to "cold" microbes.

Until then trust in God and the atomizer.

The chips are well as the block. The once bright hopes of Leonard A. Wood are also below zero. Four years ago the Governor-General of the Philippines was probably the strongest presidential contender among Republicans.

Today he faces accusations of colonial maladministration, nepotism and the granting of valuable concessions to campaign fund subscribers.

The son's spectacular success in the stock market is attended with criticism of his ambition and mother's activities as an oil promoter engage the attention of postoffice inspectors.

Representative Frazier believes that the whole family, block and chips, should be quizzed by a congressional committee. Whatever the outcome, Wood may never again aspire to the White House.

One Scrap of Paper After Another

The Polish minister in Russia slips contraband across the border under diplomatic cover. Several members of the embassy are caught selling smuggled liquor, haberdashery and women's wares.

Nothing new. Peter the Great's emissaries indulged in the same tricks. Count Mennikov's late host arrayed of Simsbury peddled furs and weapons and jewelry while soliciting treaties with France and Sweden. History encounters few novelties.

France, for instance, runs true to form by concluding defensive alliances with Czech-Slovakia and Jug-Slavia, although insisting upon strict adherence to Versailles stipulations.

Tor do Britain and Italy break ground when they establish munitions works in Austria and ship the product to Serbia and Poland. The Saint Germain agreement expressly forbids it. One scrap of paper after another.

Expediency knows no law. A faithless world, gentle
